Judge: Peter Primrose Snowdara Samoyeds, Australia

Along with his Rita, they purchased a German Shepherd bitch in 1977 and entered the world of showing purebred dogs. In a matter of weeks his wife was bored of watching him in the show ring and decided to purchase a dog for her to show. She instantly fell in love with Samoyeds and they purchased their first show puppy in 1977. It was not long before Peter could not resist their charms and purchased a male for himself to show. They bred their first litter of Samoyeds in 1979, which also produced their first of many Australian Champions under the Snowdara prefix. Having dogs which could not be shown for long periods due to loss of coat, saw them obtain other breeds that would allow them to continually show all year round. Peter and his wife exhibited, owned and bred one litter each of Border Collies and Afghans in the 80's. 1987 saw them enter into another breed being Lhasa Apso's, once again they fell in love with another breed that was long coated but this time a lot smaller. Their first puppy saw them lead the ranks in the breed in their state and still today her record has not been matched. Currently they still actively show and breed Samoyeds and Lhasa Apso's under their Snowdara prefix and have only recently stopped showing in the hound ring. Their Samoyeds and Lhasa Apso's bred under the Snowdara prefix have been producing Australian Champions and obtaining wins at all levels of the show ring since 1977. This involvement saw Peter and his wife enter the dog judges arena in 1982, with Peter gaining All Breeds status in 1996. Judging extensively throughout Australia including the Canberra Royal show, his overseas appointments include Indonesia, Singapore and New Zealand and South Africa. He has judged breed specialty shows in: Samoyeds, Dobermans, Rottweilers, Boxers and Pekingese breeds.

BENEFITS OF A RAW, MEATY DIET

If you want your cat or dog to have fresh-smelling breath, clean teeth, a shiny coat, boundless energy and great health, then feeding a raw, meaty diet can give you these results. Our pets' bodies were not designed to eat processed, carbohydrate-loaded food – they are biologically prepared to eat fresh meat and all the bits and bones in between. Why feed them a diet that keeps them merely maintained when you can provide them with everything they need to thrive and live a happier, healthier, longer life!

So what's the big deal about a BARF (Biologically-Appropriate Raw Food) diet for your carnivorous pets? There are so many benefits to feeding your pets a raw, meaty diet, including (but not limited to):

DENTAL HEALTH

Cats and dogs have sharp teeth designed for ripping and tearing at prey. In today's pets, dental disease is common – but it doesn't have to be! Feed your cat or dog a raw, size-appropriate bone, to help clean their teeth naturally.

DIGESTIVE EASE

DID YOU KNOW – raw meat is very easy for carnivores to digest! For example, 97% of the protein in our diets is completely digested – whereas only 85% of the protein in a top dry kibble is digested. That means almost all of the nutrition in our food stays in the body, instead of coming out the other end. Usable nutrition, and less poos out the other end – that's great news for pets and the owners cleaning up after them!

SKIN AND COAT HEALTH

Many of our products contain high levels of essential fatty acids which nourish the skin and coat. All of our raw meat products have high moisture contents – this also helps to keep the skin supple and hydrated.

HIGH PROTEIN

Protein is one of the most important parts of a carnivore's diet, and raw meaty products are high in protein.

BONE AND JOINT HEALTH

We have several products that are naturally high in calcium (great for puppies and kittens), and also glucosamine and chondroitin to help keep the bones and joints healthy. Our products that contain ground-up bone (e.g. Chicken Mince and Chicken Sausages) are great sources of these nutrients that are easy to digest.

HIGH MOISTURE CONTENT

What is the most important nutrient for survival? WATER! Many people forget that water is a nutrient all in itself. Cats in particular have a low thirst drive – in the wild, most of their daily water intake comes from the food they eat. A raw meaty diet is naturally high in moisture – this keeps the body hydrated and can reduce the incidence of bladder and urinary tract disorders.

HEALTHY IMMUNE SYSTEM

When you feed highly nutritious, easy-to-digest food, the body is getting more fuel for vital functions such as keeping the immune system healthy. Better nutrition = better vitality.

WEIGHT CONTROL

Obesity is another very common problem in pets today, and overweight pets are being seen as the norm. Foods high in carbohydrates, such as many dry foods, contribute to obesity – by feeding a raw, meaty diet this can help with weight control.
